Nevada County Payroll Now Over $260,000 Monthly

Sutro Tunnel Corp. Gets First RFC Loan

The first mining loan by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for $160,000 to the Sutro Tunnel Coalition Corporation at Gold Hill, Nevada, has been granted. This loan means steady employment for 80 men, says the October 15th issue of Mining and Industrial News. Continuing its correspondent at Washington, E. R. Hagenah says:

"Although the Sutro Coalition loan is the first granted by the R F C, officials here are engaged in examining applications and it is expected that further loans will be announced in the near future. Unnecessary delays have been encountered by the mining examiners in the failure of applicants to properly answer questions requested in the application forms, while many applicants fail to provide such vital information such as assay charts, maps, ownership, option and lease agreements, or, as in many cases, definite proof of proven ore values. This negligence results in undue correspondence with the applicant and ultimate confusion and misunderstanding of the provisions set forth in the original application.

"However, due to the increasing number of applications for loans, the personnel of the Mining Department of the RFC has been enlarged and officials believe that with applicants exercising added caution and accuracy in the filing of applications, delays will be minimized."

R. L. P. BIGELOW TELLS OF CCC WINTER PLANS

For the last few days Superintendent R. L. P. Bigelow has been making arrangements for winter and some of the latest news from his office will be found in the following article:

Company 1230 from Fort Lewis Washington, arrived in Bradley Camp on the Forest Hill divide, 16 miles above Auburn, Wednesday afternoon, with Captain Frantzen commander in charge of the camp. Lieutenant Drury is his assistant and Lieutenant Curtis is doctor for the camp. The 62 men at camp are all New York boys, taken from the northern part of New York state. The balance of the company are coming from the East and are due October 29th. Seventeen local experienced men from Placer and Nevada counties have been placed at the Bradley Camp. Seven experienced local men have been sent to the Forbes Camp to fill vacancies and four experienced men were sent to the Tahoe Ukiah Camp as replacements.

Superintendent Montgomery is project superintendent at Bradley Camp, formerly at Forbes Camp. Superintendent V. J. Wilson, who has been project superintendent at several camps in California since the opening of CCC camps, will be project superintendent at Forbes Camp.

On account of the storm it has been necessary to break up the road camp to Crystal Peak, Sierra county, and the equipment has been brought to Nevada City to be stored.

Tadpole Stub Camp, on Forest Hill divide, which was changing some steep pitches on the grade on the French Meadows and Roberts Flat road, have finished their work. The crew is now moving to the Forbes Camp.

All the summer fire protective forces has been laid off except protective assistants, since this last storm relieved any further fire danger.

Up to October 10th the Tahoe National Forest has had 182 fires. Twenty one of these were over 10 acres or Class C fires; 37 were B's over one-fourth of an acre and not larger than 10 acres, the rest or 124 fires were A's.

There were 2,154 acres of Tahoe National Forest burned over, 1,196 acres of private land inside the National Forest area, and 1,392 acres outside the Tahoe National Forest within the forest protective area burnt over in these 182 fires, or a total of 4,742 acres.

The total forest special funds used in this last Calendar year to October 10th for fighting fires was $8,-298. Of the total 182 fires of the Tahoe National Forest, 79 were started by lightning; two by railroads; three in lumbering operations; fifteen by camp fire; fifty-two smokers; eight from debris burning; eight incendiary; and fifteen miscellaneous, such as houses burning and other accidental fires.

There are approximately 200 men in the Tahoe Ukiah camp at White Cloud. There are 194 men at the Bradley camp. This camp will be raised to full company strength shortly. These two camps were filled with California CCC enrollees from towns of Northern California.

PLANS ALL READY FOR SKEET SHOOT SUNDAY

The Indian Summer Skeet Shoot which is to be held this Sunday, are all made and Myers Mobley, who has charge of the arrangements for the big shoot says that there is to be entertainment aplenty and lots of good beer and food for the participants and their friends. The "big shots" in skeet shooting from all over the state will participate and a large crowd is expected The shoot is being sponsored by the Nevada City Skeet Club together with other clubs in this vicinity.

MAN ACCIDENTALLY SHOT IN LEG, RECOVERS

Mario Marotti, was wounded in the leg by a gun Monday, accidentally discharged by Mrs. G. S. Litelman, in a cabin which they were living in near the Davis mine, near Round Mountain.

Marotti was brought to the Nevada City Sanitarium, where he was treated for gunshot wound by Dr. W. B. Hummelt, and several stitches were taken in his leg. He made a quick recovery and left the Sanitarium yesterday for Oakland.

SCOUT PATROL LEADERS KILBORN LAKE OCT. 20, 21

Plans for the Fifth Patrol Leaders' Conference, held in the Tahoe Area Council, to be held at the Scout Lodge on Kilborn Lake, October 20 and 21st., have been completed.

The program starting Saturday at 9 a. m., is in the hands of the Knights of Dumamis, the local Eagle Scout organization, and topics will be handled by older and Eagle Scouts. Topics for consideration will include: Patrol organization, camping, leadership, projects, community service, stunts, instruction, troop meetings and program, troop council meetings as well as instruction in the duties of the senior patrol leader, scribe and junior assistant scoutmaster. Various adult leaders will appear on the program.

Saturday evening will be devoted to entertainment. Sunday morning scout services will be held outdoors. Each scout attending will receive a certificate of training from the council prior to the meetings close shortly after 2 p. m., Sunday.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY PAGEANT PLAY

Grass Valley's pioneer history will live again in the 84th anniversary of the discovery of quartz gold as the Native Daughters of the Golden West and the Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce stage appropriate exercises at the Gold Hill Marker, one-half mile west of the Grass Valley business section on the identical spot that George McKnight stumbled over the outcrop of the famed Gold Hill ledge. The exercises are scheduled for 1:30 p. m., Sunday, October 28th., the second day of Grass Valley's two day celebration, commemorating the event.

Members of Manzanita Parlor No. 29, N. D. G. W., will present a pageant "Arrival of the Early Settlers" in the natural woodland amphitheater. On a specially constructed stage and with drop curtain accountremets, young Grass Valley and Nevada City Thespians will present "Lola and Lotta" a skit written by Jack Wolff, of Grass Valley, and depicting the friendship which existed between Lola Montez, a bizzarro adventuress, who made Grass Valley her home and Lotta Crabtree, dancer and singer, who was destined to become one of the world's leading artists. Little Lotta's first instruction in dancing was given by the famous Lola.

A group of Native Sons and Native Daughters will present a quadrille, 1860 style, much in the manner that the dance was presented in the old Hamilton hall, Grass Valley's pleasure hall, now extinct.

Judge George L. Jones will deliver the principal address of the celebration. Prize winning essays on the early history of Grass Valley, will be read by the boy and girl student winners. The Grass Valley Concert Band will appear, play a number of selections during the afternoon.

COMMERCIAL ST. CAFE RAIDED BY STATE OFFICERS

The Coffee Cup Cafe on Commercial Street in Nevada City, was raided last night by Board of Equalization officers. A. C. Wodehouse, Inspector of the 12th district, and H. P. Kerrigan, also of the State Board of Equalization. Jack H. Decker, the bartender of the cafe, was arrested and charged with the sale of illict liquor. In default of the bail, which was set at fifty dollars, Decker was lodged in the city jail. He will be held to trial before Municipal Judge Miles Coughlin, on the charge of the sale of illicit liquor, under the terms of the recent Board of Equalization Act.

FEDERAL BUILDING CONSTRUCTION

Federal building of post offices and other buildings, such as custom houses, has now reached the point where almost $32 million worth of work is under contract in over one hundred towns and cities in the country.

The government agencies are pushing plans for constracts which will involve some $100 million more.

Utah and Nevada have the lowest federal building projects at this time. Hawaii has more than Utah.

The Los Angeles post office project has been approved and will, including ground, cost close to $3 million.

SAMPLE BALLOTS

Sample ballots came in yesterday's mail with the copy of proposed amendments.

COUNTY BOOKS FOUND TO BE IN FINE CONDITION

The report submitted by the L. M. Straine & Company, Sacramento auditing firm, on the Nevada county books to H. W. Robinson, foreman of the county grand jury shows a cash increase in the treasury of $12,-274.87 over the previous fiscal period.

Total receipts of the county for the fiscal year are $461,619.89, of which $2,204.32 is in trust funds. The sum of $56,902.48 is for agency transactions, leaving $402,513.09 for general county and school purposes.

The report concludes:

We congratulate you upon the fact that seldom have we found as efficient a staff of county officers as that of Nevada county.

THREE SPEAKERS AT CIVIC CLUB MEETING MONDAY

The Nevada City Woman's Civic Club will hold its regular monthly program meeting at the Brand Studio on Monday night at eight o'clock. All members are invited and urged to attend as a most interesting and instructive program has been planned. The topics to be discussed by the speaker are live ones and ones on which all will be glad to be informed.

Judge George L. Jones will discuss briefly a few of the more important amendments. Mr. John Fortier will explain the Federal Better Housing plan and Miss Woodward, educational director of the California association for The Prevention of Tuberculosis, will tell of the aim of the organization and the work it does.

HAIGHT EXPECTED IN NEV. CITY TOMORROW

J. H. Jamison, Superior California field representative of the Haight for Governor campaign, is in the Grass Valley-Nevada City area organizing county and city chairmen to campaign for Haight's election.

Jamison says Haight will stop in Grass Valley and Nevada City Saturday afternoon for campaign visits, enroute to Marysville, where he will address a meeting.

1.80 INCHES RAIN FOR NEVADA CITY TO DATE

The present storm up to Thursday of this week brought the rainfall at Nevada City to .63 inches, the rainfall for the month of October is .70. The total fall of moisture for the season is 1.80.

State Forester M. B. Pratt said the rain and snow either will relieve or end altogether the fire hazard for the season in the foothills and mountains.

By Wednesday forenoon seven inches of snow fell at Norden. Mr. Garrison, of the local state highway camp, stated only a trace of snow fell on the Yuba Pass and six inches fell on the Donner Summit. The foot of snow that fell in the last storm, melted soon after falling.

During the storm of October 6, electricity struck a four foot thick fir tree near Lone Grave up on the Tahoe Ukiah highway and splintered it. A 25 foot stump splintered to ribbons with a hole in its base two feet underground had one root thrown 50 feet away. Limbs from the tree were thrown 150 feet away many people drive up to see this tree so fiercly torn asunder.

Over 2000 Working in Quartz and Placers

Over 2,000 men are now employed in Nevada county mines. This means a payroll of over $260,000 per month. It represents another definite step forward toward an era of comparative prosperity in the gold mining industry.

The weather element is proving favorable in the more active resumption of placer mining. Water is again proving available for sluicing operations and the increase in the number of miners is largely due to renewed activity among gravel mines.

In this issue is the story of the story of the first RFC loan to a mining corporation at Gold Hill, Nevada. This is probably the most significant news of the month for the mining industry. The first hurdle has been taken. Nevada county operators may feel assured that properties falling within the limitations imposed may now be benefited through loans from RFC.

IDAHO-MARYLAND MINES

A gigantic 1000 ton ore bin is being constructed at the Idaho-Maryland mine and will form the first step in mill operations, for rock from all the properties of the company will be hauled there, and from it will lead to the primary crusher at the extensive mill plant. The ore will be reduced in a 300 ton Marcey mill, which is being rected on a huge concrete block. H. M. Lewis is mine metallurgist and is in charge of equipment installation. It is expected the mill will be in operation by November 15. Errol MacBoyle is general manager and superintendent. Aluminum paint has been used on the 115 foot headframe and several surface buildings at the Idaho-Maryland property as a preservative. The company recently constructed a high steel fence topped with three barbed wires around the surface plant to prevent possible accidents and trespassers.

ORIENTAL GOLD STAR MINE

The electric power line to the Oriental Gold Star Mines, Inc., at Alleghany, is practically completed and three large air compressors driven by a 100 horse power motor, has been made possible more rapid development of the main workings where milling ore has been uncovered. Test drilling of a large deposit or ore in the lower levels is in progress. William A. Hooten is mine superintendent, directing the work.

YOU BET MINING COMPANP

B. L. Chase, owner of the You Bet Mining property, in the Red Dog-You Bet mining district, has five men employed and as soon as sufficient rain has fallen, another season of hydraulicking will start.

BULLION GOLD MINING COMPANY

Sinking operations have been discontinued for the present in the Mattie Gold mine below Grass Valley, and ore is being taken out on different levels in the mine.

PENNSYLVANIA MINE

The Pennsylvania Mining and Investmnt Company's Pennsylvania mie in Brown's Valley, is employing 14 men in development work. Twelve dollar ore was uncovered recently at the 200 foot level. Higher

SINCLAIR AND MOONEY

Three governors have refused to pardon Mooney. The State Supreme Court reviewed all the evidence in that celebrated case when ten persons were murdered with dynamite, and have found no reason why a pardon should be granted.

And since that bloody episode, and the trial and conviction of Mooney, a mountain of propaganda has been erected to overwhelm the judgment of three governors and the State Supreme Court.

Sinclair has promised, if he is elected governor, to pardon Mooney. He is honestly impressed, no doubt, by that mountain of propaganda. He believes, honestly, no doubt, that three governors refused to pardon Mooney for selfish political reasons with no regard whatever for justice; that the State Supreme Court denied Mooney his liberty for the same reason. But fellow citizens, which will you choose to do: believe that these governors, these high judges, are black hearted scoundrels, who have denied an innocent man his God-given right to liberty, or that Mooney is exactly where he belongs.

There is no middle course, you must believe one thing or the other.

It has been said in jest that if Sinclair is elected governor, and does pardon Mooney, as he has promised, that he will make Mooney president of the Prison Board, on account of Mooney's inside knowledge.

This is only a jest, of course, but ask yourself this: Why not?

Here's a man, innocent from the Sinclair standpoint, and smart, in view of the propaganda mountain, who has had approximately 20 years of prison life. He has a communist following in California, Russia, and throughout the world. It would please them to see Mooney compensated in some small measure for all those years in jail.

We really think Mr. Sinclair owes it to California to say just what he will do for Mooney, if elected governor, when he keeps his promise and frees Mooney.

Stand Fast—America!

By Den Walters

GROVER CLEVELAND, President, was a real American.

All his life, he stood steadfast for those principles of human liberty upon which our nation was founded.

Repeatedly, he urged his fellow countrymen to exercise their rights under the Constitution of the United States.

He wanted them to VOTE.

He knew the danger to this Republic if agitators and demagogues should be permitted to capture control of the Government due to the failure of sound-thinking citizens to go to the polls.

Listen to his words at Chicago in February, 1907—almost thirty years ago:

> "If we find that the wickedness of destructive agitators and the selfish depravity of demagogues have stirred up discontent and strife where there should be peace and harmony we should recall George Washington's admonition that harmony, industry and frugality are essential pillars of public progress."

Today, we may be sure that Grover Cleveland would admonish us to "Stand Fast for America," to organize against those who seek to overthrow the government, to vote against those who attempt to pull America from her moorings by proposing strange actions wholly contrary to our Constitution.

Today—when we see Communistic forces at work to overthrow our government, when we find men elected to office by organized minorities proposing to set aside the rights guaranteed to all Americans under the Constitution—what would Cleveland say?

He would, without a doubt, say to us with unmistakable sincerity "in God's name, Americans—for the sake of your homes and firesides, Stand Steadfast for America and Cast Your Ballots!"

Building for the Future

We are often sad and weary
When the strife of day is done,
And we linger in the shadows
At the setting of the sun;
But a ringing call to Service
Comes from tasks we've scarce begun,
And we go marching on.

We see the warm lights gleaming
As we pass along the street,
And catch the lilting melody
Of children's voices sweet.
And the joyous songs they're singing,
We tenderly repeat,
As we go marching on.

Then we smile through tears of gladness
When the stars are shining bright,
And the home lights softly beaming,
Call the wanderers from the night;
For we know the homes about us
Are as jewels in His sight,
And we go marching on.

We are building for the future—
We are building firm and true;
For the bulwarks of the nation
Are the homes that shelter you;
And helpful tasks of service
We shall still delight to do,
As we go marching on.

MORE ABOUT THE NEW DEAL CRITICISM

It must by now be very evident to all thinking people that it is impossible to make twenteth century society function according to the eighteenth century formulas of Jefferson and Adam Smith. This great truth is being more and more impressed upon us day by day. As we more clearly recognize the complexities of modern society, the problem becomes ever more difficult.

It must be remembered that this generation is struggling with the problem of making theoretical knowledge practical. In our complex society problems arise every day demanding solution, for which no precedent exists.

There are, however, among the so-called "brain trust" certain ardent reformers who, if left to themselves, would endeavor to go too fast and too far. Among the "standpat" conservatives, history shows that they fail to move fast enough or far enough. It is a well known fact that you can go no faster nor farther than the people as a whole understand and approve. Our system of government with its constitutional checks and balances provides substantial guarantees that the ardent reformers will not go faster nor farther than the majority of the people desire.

Criticism aimed at that portion of the Government known as the "brain trust" has reached the point where the title 'professor' has become almost an approbious epithet. It is a poor form of criticism to deny that the successful man of affairs should have a theoretical knowledge of political economy. In our twentieth century civilization, the successful man should be able to see the relation of his job to the plant or factory, the plant or factory to the whole industry, the whole industry to the National economy, and the National economy to the world. It is this theoretial knowledge that the so-alled "brain trust" is making the people as a whole conscious of.

The "brain trust" itself answers its critic's in a tenor that is perhaps correct. It answers that it is brains in Government that are used for the benefit of the masses of the people rather than for the privileged few, that arouses hostility. It answers that its critics use the best brains available; but brains without heart, soul or conscience. Brains without sense of social responsibility. It answers that it is fear that brains will discover means to put an end to unfair advantages resulting in aggrandizement of the few at the cost of many.

FEDERAL ORGANIZATION WILL CARE FOR SEASONAL INFLUX OF TRANSIENTS

A State-wide organization which has virtually removed all responsibility from local public or private charity organizations for the care of non-resident indigents and absorbed this duty as a governmental function, is rapidly nearing completion in California as the result of approximately ten months of work in the State by the Federal Transient Service, it was announced yesterday by H. A. R. Carleton, State Director of the service.

Last year at this time, California cities and towns were forced to care for transients and destitute families of non-residential status as best they could through existing charitable institutions, resulting in such conditions as exemplified by overcrowded soup kitchens and "flop-houses," a wave of panhandling and frequent want on the part of many families whose funds had run out before they acquired residential status necessary for public charity.

An orderly system of government care for out-of-tate persons and families, developed since last December and equipped to handle the fall and seasonal influx of transients, is now functioning in California under the goverment Trasient Service's direction, and taking care of 21,310 non-resident transients and 2,011 homeless state residents classed as "intra-state transients," according to a recent one-day census taken by the Federal organization.

Under this system, unattached men and boys who become stranded in the State this fall, will not be permitted to congregate in large numbers in the cities, but will be assigned as quickly as possible, to work camps in the forests and mountains where they will be required to earn their maintenance by labor on useful public works, Carleton stated.

Eighteen shelters now located in principal population centers will serve merely as temporary havens and intake bureaus for the itinerants, with the bulk of the wanderers to be quartered in 31 work camps scattered throughout the State. Intra-state transients, or single homeless resident men, who are ineligible for CCC camp enrollment are to be cared for at 23 State labor camps in California.

Unattached women and girls of the transient class, while much fewer in number than the men and boys have likewise been taken under the wing of the government organization and provisions made for their care, a large proportion of them are earning their maintenance by making clothing, blankets, and other articles needed by the men in the camps.

Through the operation of 16 bureaus in as many principal cities, provision has also been made for the handling of destitute non-resident families in the State, the government extending charity along lines similar to those followed by county welfare departments in looking after resident indigents.

While caring for those stranded here, the government plans to continue its efforts to reduce the number of non-resident needy persons in California by returning as many as possible to their homes, and by making it difficult for newcomers to enter the State, Carleton declared.

Meanwhile, public-co-operation will be sought in making the program more effective by refusing requests for "handouts" or individual charity, referring applicants to the nearest Transient Service Bureau for aid.

DISTURBER OF PEACE JAILED

Ivor Koupous was arrested by Chief of Police, Garfield Robson, on a charge of disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace. Municipal Judge Miles Coughlin sentenced him to 10 days in the city jail or a fine of 25 dollars. Koupus chose the jail. He is employed at the Slager mine on the North Fork of the American river.

THIRTY YEARS OF PROGRESS

Central picture shows the Bank of Italy, predecessor of the Bank of America, as it looked in 1906. The original office on Columbus Avenue where the Bank was established on October 17, 1904, was razed by the San Francisco Fire. In thirty years the Bank of America has assumed state-wide proportions under the leadership of A. P. Giannini (lower center). San Francisco, head office of the branch bank (left) and Los Angeles, main office (right) as they are today, are shown in contrast to the Bank premises of twenty-eight years ago.

PLACER CIRCULARS CAN BE OBTAINED FROM THE DEPARTMENT INTERIOR

The first of three parts of a comprehensive manuscript entitled "Placer Mining in the Western States" has just been issued by the United States Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, as Information Circular 6786, by E. D. Gardner and C. H. Johnson.

This is an outstanding work describing in detail the methods used and costs in placer mining practice and includes many illustrations of equipment for both small and large-scale operations. It will be of assistance to the operators of both large and small placer mines in improving treatment methods and gold recovery, since it sets forth the latest improvements in methods and illustrates their applicability under different mining conditions. The titles to the three parts are:

I. C. 6786, Part 1—General Information, Hand-Shoveling and Ground Sluicing.

I. C. 6787, Part 2—Hydraulicking Treatment of Placer Concentrates and Marketing of Gold.

I. C. 6788, Part 3—Dredging and Other Forms of Mechanical Handling of Gravel, and Drift Mining.

NEWMONT COMPANY PAYS DIVIDENDS

The Newmont Mining Company has declared a dividend of 50 cents payable October 31 to stock of record October 16. In April of this year a similar disbursement was made. In making the announcement the company issued the following statement: "The board of directors request that this distribution be regarded simply as a return out of earned surplus and not the establishment of a dividend basis or policy for the future, formulation of which should not in the opinion of the board be attempted at this time." H. S. Munroe has been elected a director to fill a vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mrs. A. H. Drexel Biddle, Jr., who has been living abroad for the past three years. A. J. McNab was elected a member of the executive committee which was increased to six members from five.

CAMPTONVILLE CASE

CAMPTONVILLE, Oct. 17.—The case of Mrs. Rachael M. Labadie, administratrix of the estate of Francis S. Labadie, vs. Frank W. Meggers, Jacob Dietrich, et al, was heard in the Yuba County Superior Court Tuesday, before Judge Warren Steel. The case involved the ownership of Buck's Spring, located on Dietrich's ranch, and the trial lasted all day. The following witnesses were suppoened from here and were witnesses in the case: Mr. Jake Deal, Lee Bullington, Julius E. Pauly, M. G. Calvin, Ross C. Zaring, William Burns, Acton M. Cleveland, J. W. Morehead. Ray Manwell represented Mrs. Labadie and Erling S. Norby was attorney for Meggers and Dietrich. A decision will be rendered later by Judge Steel after he studies the various points of the case.

John O. Mott, of Deer Creek section was in Nevada City yesterday on business.

CAMPTONVILLE, Oct. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Acton M. Cleveland motored to Marysville Tuesday on a short business visit.

Fred J. Joubert returned Sunday from San Francisco where he attended the Grand Lodge of Masons.

Mrs. R. M. Labadie, Julis E. Pauly, H. G. Calvin and J. E. Deal, motored to Marysville Tuesday on legal business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Godfrey, of Pike, were in this section a few days ago on a short visit.

Frank W. Meggers and Jacob Dietrich motored to Marysville Tuesday on legal business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morehead and daughters motored to Marysville Tuesday on legal business.

Mrs. Ross C. Zaring has returned to her home here following a serious illness and operation at Grass Valley; she is improved in health.

William Burns and Ross C. Zaring motored to Marysville Tuesday on legal business.

Henry W. Huckins, of North San Juan, has been carrying on mining activities in this section.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bullington returned Wednesday from a short visit with relatives at Wheatland.

C. E. Clinch, of Grass Valley, was in town Monday on a brief business visit.

Myron Pauly, Wm. Groves, Erle Pauly and Winsmore Chapman, motored to Nevada City Sunday evening.

ASSEMBLYMAN MAYO VISITS NEVADA CITY

Assemblyman Jesse M. Mayo, of Calaveras county, was a visitor in Nevada City Tuesday in the interest of his campaign at the general election. Mayo stated while here that his policy at the coming session of the legislature, which convenes in January, will be to exert every effort in behalf of the mining industry, particularly to stop any movement made to add a tax on newly mined gold. A movement has been started among those seeking new revenue for the state to add a tax on gold and according to Mayo every effort should be made by the mining industry and their representatives to avoid this undue burden on the industry that is just now attempting such a heroic comback. An effort should be made to show these people that the raise in the price of gold is far from all profits and that the gold mining industry should be given all the encouragement possible now rather than hindrance by a tax on gold or any other restrictive legislation.

FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Walter W. Woods was fined $25 for reckless driving by Judge Walter L. Mobley.

I. H. Kelly yesterday hit his finger with a sledge hammer, while cutting wood at the airport. Dr. W. B. Hummelt is caring for the finger.

CARROLL COUGHLAN RETURNS FROM ENJOYABLE VACATION

Carroll Coughlan, of the Alpha Store, returned Saturday from a two weeks vacation and reports a fine time and new vigor and vim for his work. A week was spent in San Francisco and a week on a trip to the state of Nevada, where with Elzear Foley he visited Elzear's aunt at Ely, Nevada. High lights of the vacation trip were the California- St. Mary's game at Berkeley and a trip through the copper pit and smelter at McGill, Nevada. The pit is 1 mile by half a mile and 600 feet deep. There is a railroad to haul the ore out. A large flotation plant that is used as in gold processing proved interetsing to the visitors.

MINING NEWS

values are expected in another vein at the 500 foot level. The shaft is a 40 per cent incline now down 264 feet. H. W. White is mine superintendent.

EMPRESS MINE

The last consignment of machinery units for the completion of the new 300 ton daily capacity mill at the Empress mine, arrived September 27, and the mill will be rushed to completion so as to be in operation by the first of November. Fifteen men are employed and as soon as the mine is in production the full force will be re-employed.

GARESIO QUARTZ PROPERTY

Ore is being taken out of a new shaft sunk on the Garesio property, west of Nevada City and a test run was put through the Queen Lill custom mill in the last few days. E. R. Dawson and associates are developing the property.

SCADDEN FLAT MINE

Robert Jones and Robert Riley are operating the Scadden Flat property on the North Star holdings at the lower end of Boston Ravine. Ore from the shaft is being milled at the North Star mill.

SCHROEDER MINE

The Black Bear mine and Forlorn Hope claims sold by the late County Assessor H. C. Schroeder, to the Colley Butler interests, has been named the Schroeder mine in his memory. Twelve men are reconditioning the property which lies west of Grass Valley several miles.

GOLDEN CENTER MINE

The Golden Center mill is operating three shifts on ore from the mine, and crews are engaged in raising from the 1100 foot level to the 500 foot level in the mine. L. S. Wincapaw is superintendent of the large holdings of Cooley Butler.

BUTLER RANCH

The new interests, who took over the Butler Ranch ground, below Grass Valley, have their shaft sunk to 75 feet. The ore is black and carries some gold. This ore is different than any found in the district and is puzzling engineers.

ANCHO-ERIE PROPERTIES

Mining and milling continues at the Anchoe-Erie properties near Washington, with a crew of about 11 men. Development of the ground continues under superintendent R. A. Messe.

HUSSEY MINE

O. E. McCraney, superintendent of the California Sierra Gold Mines, Inc., which is now operating the Hussey mine in Willow Valley, reports ore being mined from both levels in the mine, with production being very satisfactory. The ore is milled at the Queen Lil mill, west of Nevada City.

SPOTSWOOD AND ROCKY GLEN

Development continues at the Rocky Glen and Spotswood properties in the Graniteville section. A long tunnel was driven in the Rocky Glen mine this summer and a strong vein picked up at depth. Fred Searls and associates are developing the property, with Victor Bongard as superintendent.

PRESCOTT HILL MINE

Work of repairing of the collar in the 1500 foot shaft and cleaning out of a large cave-in near the top of the shaft, was completed Wednesday at the Prescott Hill mine, east of Grass Valley. It was taken over in the last few months by the large Newmont interests. In a few weeks machinery is to be installed for the development of the shaft. Will Jeffrey, of Nevada City, is foreman.

ROUND MOUNTAIN CHAMPION

Four men are employed under Mr. Federwitz, superintendent, in the Round Mountain Champion mine, north of Nevada City. O. H. Howard has a working option on the property, which is owned by Nevada City business men.

SPRING HILL MINE

The Spring Hill mine interests recently tapped the main shaft of the Golden Gate mine at the 1000 foot level and is now unwatering the tunnel through the natural grade of the 900 foot deep east drift of the Spring Hill and by pumping through the Spring Hill shaft. As soon as completed inspection of the Golden Gate shaft is to be made. H. K. Plate is superintendent.

RIVER PLACERS GRAVEL

The River Placers have made splendid progress this summer driving a tunnel to drain a 2000 foot curve in the South Yuba river and then used two drag lines to strip the top layers of gravel from the stream bed. The company is now making a test of the lower strata of gravel for the gold content.

YELLOW DIAMOND QUARTZ

Los Angeles people who recently took over the Yellow Diamond quartzz property in Indian Flat, west of Nevada City, have a small crew moving the machinery on the property to a new location, where the company expects to start operation. Otto E. Gruenwald owns the property.

ZEIBRIGHT MINE

The crew at the Zeibright mine in Bear Valley, has been almost doubled in the last few weeks. A large mill was shipped to the property some time ago, and as soon as installation is completed, this will be one of the big mines of the district.

JIM MINE

The Jim Consolidated Mines in the Graniteville district, have practically completed rehabilitation of the old Jim mine, which was first worked in 1865. Powerful equipment included a Deisel engine and a compressor. The old workings have been cleaned out and retimbered. Faulting stopped operations years ago when the shaft had been sunk 200 feet, and rich ore mined, above the fault. The new company plans to sink and explore a wide strip of virgin ground.

MAYBERT MINE

Latest news from the Maybert property, in the Washington district, is to the effect that they were tearing down the old mill and a new one is to be built. There are not more than two men at the property.

HOGE DEVELOPMENT COMPANY

Twelve men are now engaged in taking out rich ore on the 300 foot level at the Hoge Development Co., property, northeast of Nevada City. It is understood the men did well in their first run of ore in the Hoge mill.

OMEGA GRAVEL PROPERTY

At the Omega gravel mine, north of Washington, 12 me nare getting out more lumber to be used on the property as soon as hydraulic operations start. With continued wet weather, it won't be long until this property is in operation.

HANK LEE MINE DEVELOPED

A Lancaster, of Forrest, California, has taken over the old Hank Lee placer mine on Orgeon Creek, and is developing the proprty. At present six men are employed, and are at work improving and developing the property.

NORTH STAR-EMPIRE MINES, LTD.

The North Star-Empire Mines, Ltd., are contemplating on extension of the Central shaft of the North Star unit from the bottom level of the 3200 foot vertical shaft on the dip of the ledge, which shows virgin territory, in a strike last year, to an additional depth of 800 to 1000 feet. It is understood station cutting and other preparations are well advanced.

ALTA HILL MINE

Good gold values have been found in gravel at the 150 foot level of the Grass Valley Consolidated shaft on the Alta Hill ground, in Grass Valley, which was reopened recently. Wallace Butler, son of Cooley Butler, of Los Angeles, is in charge of the property.

PROGRAM FOR THE WEEK END AT NEVADA THEATER

Friday night brings John Wayne to the Nevada Theater screen in a masterful portrayal of life on the frontier called "Star Packer." In this picture Wayne dares death to get his man for the law, going so far as to go to the mountainous hide-out of the bandits. A serial and shorts complete Friday's program.

For pure, hilarious entertainment, one of the funniest pictures of the year is Paramount's "Ladies Should Listen," which comes Saturady to the Nevada Theater.

The story is a Continental farce in which a young man-about-town in Paris gets into all sorts of complications with an option on a South American nitrate concession and too many lady friends. The efforts of a telephone operator, who is in love with him, to extricate him from his troubles only help to complicate matters further.

In the principal male role, Cary Grant displays great ability as a farceur, aided by Frances Drake who is highly pleasing as the telephone operator.

Other players who help to make this picture highly amusing are Nydia Westman, Edward Everett Horton, George Barbier.

"Friends of Mr. Sweeney," is the feature attraction Sunday at the Nevada Theater. It is a rollicking Warner Bros. comedy based on the hilarious novel by Elmer Davis, who has takken as his principal character a "timid soul" sort of person who is inspired by love, liquor and an old time college pal to become a raging lion.

Charlie Ruggles, in the role, blossoms out in a night as a big time sport and the terror of a band of crooks in some of the most ridiculously funny situations imaginable. It is a picture filled with thrills and hearty laughs.

Ann Dvorak supplies the love interests in the leading femiinne role as Ruggles' secretary who eggs him on to be a real devil of a fellow.

Mrs. Berryman, aunt of Horace Curnow, still remains very low, at her home on Upper Pine street. Her friends hope for her a recovery to her usual health.

Don Cossack Chorus

The Cossacks are coming, but no longer the wild riding conquerors in battle, these thirty-six stalwart Russians, ex-officers of the Czar's Imperial Army. Conquerors still, they now march to peaceful victories under the command of their diminutive leader, Serge Jaroff.

Organized in 1923 in a prison camp near Constantinople, these Don Cossacks have made history as the greatest singing organization in the world. Their record of over 2,700 concerts given in Europe, England, Australia and America has never been equalled.

A Don Cossack concert is a thrilling experience—there is no other description. The exultant fervor of their voices in Russian sacred music, the passionate longing expressed in their folk songs, and the riotous accompaniment of shouts, whistling, and frenzied dancing in their Cossack war songs make a program that, once heard, is never forgotten.

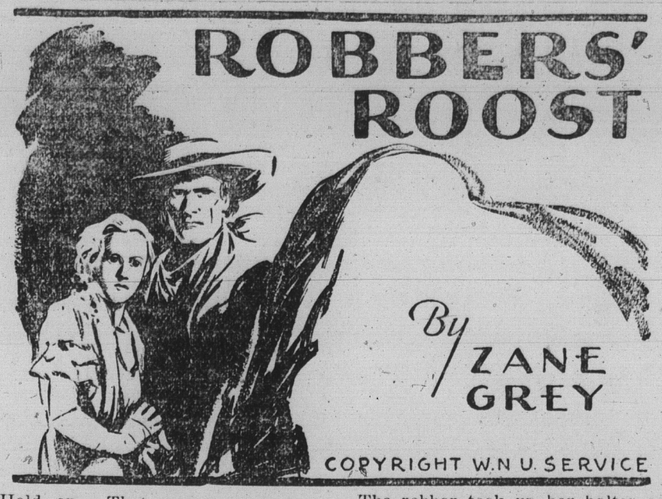
ROBBERS' ROOST



By ZANE GREY

COPYRIGHT W.N.U. SERVICE

"Hold on. Thet was somethin' I had in mind," drawled Hays. "But it didn't work. I had to kill Progar. An'—"

"Who's Progar?"

"Wal, he's Heeseman's right-hand man. Now it happened thet foxy Heeseman was plannin' the same trick I pulled. Progar an' another feller ketched us takin' the gurl out. The other feller got away."

"Thet's wuss than ever!" screamed Smoky. "Heeseman will find out."

"Huh. I should smile in perticular thet he will. We seen his outfit on your trail!"

"Shet up! Hosses comin'!"

The ensuing rush was quelled by Smoky's ringing order. "Hold on! It's Jeff!"

An opening in the grove showed Bridges plunging upon them.

"Heeseman's outfit trailin' us," he announced. "Back about five miles when I left my post."

"Fellers, grab your rifles an' take to cover," yelled Smoky.

Hays made a dive for his horse and, mounting, leaned over to take up a rope halter round the neck of the horse Miss Herrick was riding.

"You lied—to me," she cried, angrily. "You assured me that if I'd come without resistance you'd soon arrange for my freedom. Here we are miles from Star ranch."

Hays paid not the slightest attention to her, but started off, leading her horse.

"Jim Wall, are you going to permit this outrage?"

"I'm powerless, Miss Herrick," he replied, hurriedly. "If Heeseman catches us you'll be worse off."

The leader headed down the slope, dragging Miss Herrick's horse. Jim could hear the girl's protestations. The other riders made haste to line the pack horses. Smoky brought up the rear.

No doubt about Hays knowing his way! He rode as one familiar with this red clay and gray gravel canyon. The pack horses kicked up a dust like a red cloud.

Jim kept unobtrusively working ahead until there were only three pack horses in front of him, and he could see Hays and the girl at intervals.

Hays yelled back for his riders to hurry. He pointed to the left wall as if any moment their pursuers might appear there.

The next sign from Smoky was a rifle shot. Jim espied something flash along the rim, high up and far back, out of range, if it were a pursuer.

"Rustle!" shrilled Smoky. "I seen riders. They ducked back. They'll aim to head us off."

Hays bawled back an order and pointed aloft.

Suddenly riders popped into view back on the point of an intersecting canyon. Hays and Latimer opened fire with their revolvers. The riders began to return the fire with rifles. Jim saw Latimer knocked off his horse, but he leaped up and mounted again, apparently not badly injured. He raced ahead after Hays, who rode fast, dragging the girl's horse, and at the same time shooting at the riders until he passed around a corner of the canyon. Latimer soon disappeared after him. Then the riders above turned their attention to the rest of Hays' outfit.

Jim had a quarter of a mile to ride to pass the corner ahead to safety. The pack horses were scattered, tearing up the canyon. Jim gained on them. Then he began to shoot.

One of his first shots hit a horse, and his seventh connected with a rider, who plunged like a crippled rabbit back out of sight. The others of Heeseman's outfit took alarm, dodged here and there to hide, or ran back. Jim emptied the magazine of his rifle just before he passed round into the zone of safety.

Jim hauled Bay to a halt, and soon the pack horses galloped by, every pack riding well. Lincoln dashed into sight first, closely followed by Mac, Happy Jack and Jeff, all with guns smoking. And lastly came Slocum, hatless, blood on his face.

"Jest barked," panted Slocum. "Load yer guns—an' ride on!"

Around the next turn they came upon Hays and his two riders. With another big intersecting canyon on the right, it looked as if their pursuers were held up.

Deeper and deeper grew the canyon. Mid-afternoon found the fugitives entering a less constricted area, where sunlight and open ahead attested to the vicinity of a wider canyon, surely the Dirty Devil. And so it proved.

Hays waited for his riders and the pack animals to reach him.

"Hank, air you aimin' for thet roost you always give us a hunch about but never produced?" asked Slocum.

"I've saved it up, Smoky, fer jest some such deal as this."

Jim, over the back of his horse, watched Miss Herrick. She was tiring and her head drooped.

The robber took up her halter and, straddling his horse, he spurred into the muddy stream. He lead into the middle of the river and then turned downstream.

An hour later, he turned into a crack that could not be seen a hundred yards back, and when Jim reached it he was amazed to see the robber leading up another narrow gorge, down which ran another swift, narrow stream. Jim appreciated that a man would have had to know where this entrance was, or he could never have found it. The opening was hidden by a point of wall which curved out and around.

This gash wound like a snake into the bowels of the colored, overhanging earth. Presently they reached a bottom from which weird, black, bold walls stood up, ragged of rim against the sky.

"Hyar we air," called out Hays. "Throw saddles an' packs. Let the hosses go. No fear of hosses ever leavin' this place."

Jim's night-owl eyes discerned Hays lifting Miss Herrick off her horse and half carrying her off toward the rustling cottonwoods. Jim, making pretense of leading his horse, followed until Hays stopped at the border of what appeared a round grove of cottonwoods impenetrable to the sight.

"Oh, for G—d's sake—let go of me!" gasped the girl, and sank down on the grass.

"You may as well get used to thet," replied Hays, in a low voice. "Do you want anythin' to eat?"

"Water—only water. I'm—choking."

"I'll fetch some, an' a bed fer you."

Little did Hays realize, as he strode back to the horses that Jim stood there in the gloom, a clutching hand on his gun and mad lust for blood in his heart. Jim knew he meant to kill Hays. Why not now? But as before he had the sagacity and the will to resist a terrible craving.

With nerveless hands he unpacked his outfit. Then he sat down upon his bed roll, exhausted, and gazed around him. The place fascinated. An owl hooted down somewhere in the canyon, and far away a wolf bayed bloodthirstily.

Soon a crackle of fire turned Jim to see a growing light, and dark forms of men. Jim waited until he saw Hays go to the camp fire, and then he, too, joined the men.

"What kind of a roost is it, Hank? Anythin' like the Dragon canyon?"

"No. I seen that place once. It's a cave high up—forty feet mebbe, from the canyon bed. Only one outlet to thet burrow, an' thet's by the same way you come. This roost has four. We could never be ketched in a hundred years."

"Hank, how'd the lady stand the ride?"

"She's all in."

"Gosh, no wonder. Thet was a job fer men."

"Reckon I'll put up the little tent fer my lady guest."

"Hank, how air you goin' to collect thet ransom now?" inquired Lincoln.

"I dunno. Heeseman shore spoiled my plan."

Jim watched the robber chief minister to the wounded Latimer. While he was bandaging the wound Jim stole away in the darkness toward where the chief had left his prisoner.

It was dark as pitch toward the grove of cottonwoods, but Jim located gray objects against the black grass. He stole closer.

"Where are you, Miss Herrick?" he called in a tense whisper: "It's Jim Wall."

He heard a sound made by boots scraping on canvas. Peering sharply he finally located her sitting up on a half-unrolled bed, and he dropped on one knee. Her eyes appeared unnaturally large and black in her white face.

"Oh, you must be careful. He said he'd shoot any man who came near me," she whispered.

"He would—if he could. But he'll never kill me, Miss Herrick," Jim whispered back. "I want to tell you I'll get you out of this some way or other. Keep up your courage. Fight him—if—"

"I felt you'd—save me," she interrupted, her soft voice breaking. "Oh, if I had only listened to you! But I wasn't afraid. I left both my door and windows open. That's how they got in. I ordered them out. But he made that Sparrow man point a gun at me. He jerked me out of bed—throwing me on the floor. I was half stunned. Then he ordered me to dress to ride."

"Keep your nerve," interposed Jim, with a backward glance toward the camp fire. "But I'll not deceive you. Hank Hays is capable of anything. His men are loyal. Except me. I'm with them, though I don't belong to the outfit. I could kill him any time, but I'd have to fight the rest. The odds are too great. I'd never save you that way. You must help me play for time—till opportunity offers."

"I trust you—I'll do as you say. . . . Oh, thank you."

"You said he robbed you?" went on Jim, with another look back at camp. Hays was standing erect.

"Yes. I had four thousand pounds in American currency. The Sparrowhawk man found it—also my jewelry. . . . Another thing which worries me now—he made me pack a bundle of clothes, my toilet articles—"

"Ahah. But where was Herrick all this while?"

"They said they had tied him up in the living room."

"How much money did Herrick have on hand?"

"I don't know, but considerable."

"It is a good bet he robbed your brother, too. That's make this ransom deal look fishy, even if there were nothing else."

"There! He is coming. Go—go! You are my only hope."

Without a look Jim rose to glide away along the grove. He realized that when Hank Hays stole this girl from her home he had broken the law of his band, he had betrayed them, he had doomed himself. No matter what loyalty they felt for Hays, the woman would change it. Her presence alone meant disruption and death.

Morning disclosed as remarkable a place as Jim had ever seen. Below him the little gray tent Hays had raised for his captive had been pitched against the grove of cottonwoods, which occupied a terrace. One half of the trees stood considerably higher than the other, which fact indicated rather a steep bank running through the middle of the grove. The luxurant jungle of vines, ferns, flowers, moss and grass on that bank was eloquent of water.

The grove contained perhaps twenty-five acres of level sward, as grassy as any pasture. Aside from the features that made this retreat ideal for robbers, it was amazing in its fertility, in its protected isolation, and in the brilliance of its many colors.

Jim strode over to the camp fire to wash.

"How's Sparrowhawk?" asked Jim.

"Stopped bleedin'." It was Hays who answered, this time. "But I gotta dig out thet bullet an' I'm plumb feared I can't."

"Let it be a while. How's our prisoner?"

"Say, all you fellers askin' me thet. Fact is, I don't know. She was dead to the world last night."

"Let her sleep. That was an awful ride."

"After grub we'll climb up an' took our roost over," announced Hays presently.

"It certainly is a great robbers' roost," agreed Jim, wiping his face. "If we get surprised we'll simply go out on the other side."

"Wal, we jest can't be surprised," said Hays, complacently. "One lookout with a glass can watch all the approaches."

"If I was Heeseman and had seen you, as he sure saw us, I'd find you in three days," returned Jim, deliberately.

"Wall, I'll bet you two to one thet you can't even git out of here," declared Hays.

"Why, man, you just told us all how to get out."

"Down the gully, yes. But you've never seen it an' you'd shore be stuck. . . . Wal, we'll keep watch during' daylight."

LABOR HELPED MOST BY FEDERAL HOME LOANS

Labor gets the lion's share of the dollars that are going into the modernization and repair work being done under the Better Housing Program of the Federal Housing Administration, say official reports.

The larger part of labor's share goes to residents of the community in which the work is done. They get 44 cents out of every dollar.

Factory, mill, and dealer labor get 21 cents out of every dollar spent in this work. Labor at sources of material, such as mines and forests get seven cents and transportation labor four cents, making a total to labor of all types of 76 cents.

The remaining 24 cents goes to building supply dealers, to manufacturers, for raw material and for transportation.
